BALLINGTON BOOTH'S RELIGIOUS MOVE-MENT.

A FLAG ADOPTED, BUT NO NAME YET SELECTED-

MORE MUSIC TO BE A FEATURE OF THE MEETINGS.

Mr. and Mrs. Ballington Booth were actively engaged at their offices in the Bible House yesterday considering and perfecting details connected with their new religious organization. There is neces-sarily much to be accomplished before the movement can assume any practical shape, but both the ex-commander and his wife are devoting their best energies to the work, and in the course of the next few days a fairly complete statement of the character, aims and constitution of the new scheme may be expected to be made by Mr. Booth. As he an-nounced at the big meeting in the Cooper Union on Sunday night, the particular class that Ballington Booth will endeavor to reach is the great army of the artisan or wage-earning people. Fifty-six per cent of the white race of this country, Mr. Booth maintains, are not identified with any Christian organization, 36 per cent belonging to what he terms the wage-earning community. The problem as to the best methods by which to reclaim the latter proportion of this churchless section of the people is what Mr. and Mrs. Booth are now at work upon. They agree that in order to realize anything like success it will be requisite to introduce new methods, and consequently in this latest organization will be found numerous innovations and forms of service that will differ entirely from those of the Salvation Army or other religious associations.

One of Mr. Booth's propositions is the formation of a corps of special travelling agents, who will go from city to city holding meetings, and will also conduct services in churches of all denominations. Mr. Booth also intends to make a special feature of musle in his services. He holds to the belief that music has too long been discarded in missionary ork, and he intends to use in his new sphere of work a higher class of instrumental music than the work a higher class of instrumental music than the booming drum and blaring cornet. By such means he hopes to attract the denizens of the slums and to entice the attention of the "middle class." It is said that already many musicians and vocalists have offered their services toward the furtherance of the new work in this direction.

The name of the organization has not yet been selected, but an emblem has been chosen consisting selected, but an emblem has been chosen consisting of a white barner with a blue cross in the centre and a field of stars in the upper lefthand corner. The distinct, y American character of the movement is thus demonstrated in founding the principal features of the emblem upon those of the American flag, and Ballington Booth said yesterday that whatever name was adopted would be of National significance. The members of the army will be uniformed, but the dress will be of a totally different design from the Salvationists.

There were a large number of callers yesterday upon Mr. and Mrs. Booth, and promises of help were received from people whose sympathies have been with them during the controversy. No information could be obtained yesterday of the probable number of secessionists from the old army to the new.

number of secessionists from the old army to the new.

In the absence of Commissioner Eva Booth and Colonel Nicol the headquarters of the Salvation Army in Fourteenth-st. were in the control of Colonel Eadle. He refused to reply to inquiries of any kind, except to state that beyond the few corps that revolted last week, there was perfect loyalty throughout the whole of the army. He added that the work or influence of the Army would in no way be affected by Ballington Booth's new movement. The necessary deeds and other legal papers connected with the transfer of the property from Mr. Booth have been prepared, but until General Booth formally appoints a new commander the property will remain in the hands of Ballington Booth.

GENERAL BOOTH ARRIVES IN LONDON. London, March 9.-General Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, arrived in London this morning from India, where he had been in the interest of the army. He was met at the railway station by the chief officers of the organization, and after the exchange of greetings he went to a hotel.

Coroner Dobbs yesterday took the ante-mortem statement of William G. Wattson, the division superintendent of the West Shore Railroad, who was shot last Thursday at his office in Weehawken by Edmund Clifford, formerly one of the road's detectives. Wattson is still in Roosevelt Hospital. Coroner Dobbs said yesterday that his condition his statement Wattson said: "Clifford came

Two years ago I had cause to discharge you, but through influential friends you were reinstated, and about three weeks ago a report was made to me by one of the stockholders that you were a disgrace to the position you held, owing to your spending the greater part of your time in salcons. I found the facts to be as represented, and reported to my superior officer, who ordered me to discharge you. Instead of being a personal enemy of yours, I have tried to be your friend, for you know I have talked to you several times about your failure to make the necessary reports of service to me."

"At this he jumped to his feet, and said: This is my report." Pulling a pistol from his pocket, he attempted to fire. It missed fire, and I grappled with him. He pulled the trigger again, and I was shot in the abdomen and later in the shoulder." ago a report was made to me by one of the stock-

Among the other artists represented are George Inness, who contributes a few small examples; L. M. Wiles, Arthur Hoeber, P. De Longpré, W. Delecroix, D. Hasbrouck, A. M. Turner and W. M. Post. The sale will end Tuesday evening.

POLICEMEN AND VOTING PRIVILEGES.

COMMISSIONERS AGAINST THE HOFFMAN BILL-

THE CROWDING OF AISLES IN THEATRES. Because Police Commissioner Andrews is going to Albany to-day to advocate the passage of a bill for a new police signal station, the Police Board yesterday had a meeting on an off day. Mr. Andrews will stay in Albany until to-morrow, to athearing on Assemblyman Hoffman's bill to compel the Commissioners to let all policemen have time to vote on Election Day, and the president of the Police Board yesterday gave the following in-structions to Mr. Andrews: "Explain to the chair-man that at the present time the Board does everything to allow policemen to vote; that last year a much larger percentage of policemen voted than ever before, and that we could not have had any more voting and preserved order at the polls. This more voting and preserved order at the polls. This haw makes it necessary to violate the statute which provides for having two men at each polling-place, and in case of trouble at an election it might result in the most widespread fraud and violence. Indeed, it is inviting such fraud and violence. Indeed, it is inviting such fraud and violence. The Police Board yesterday received a communication from the Fire Department to the effect that the firemen detailed at theatres giving continuous performances have recently had difficulty in carrying out the provisions of law relating to the crowding of alsies during the performances, and suggesting that the provisions of law could more readily be enforced if the detailed firemen had the support of a policeman in each of such theatres. The Board gave orders to inform managers of theatres where continuous performances are given that they must keep the alsies clear. Chief Conlin was also instructed to detail police officers where necessary.

REPRIMANDED FOR SLOWNESS.

Collector Kilbreth called before him at the Custom House yesterday half a dozen inspectors, who were charged with delaying "immediate transportation entries," which should be filed each afternoon. These entries are for goods arriving from abroad and destined for interior points, and they pass through New-York in bond. In some instances there are delays of ten days in filing entries. All the inspectors except one named Kelly had excuses. Kelly admitted that he might have been more prompt, and the Collector complimented him on being honest about the matter. The Collector lectured the inspectors, and they promised promptness hereafter. Collector Kilbreth called before him at the Custom

NO LLOYDS ARRESTS YET. There was much dissatisfaction among them, and it was said that they might strike at any time. OFFICIALS STILL HUNTING EVIDENCE.

GRAHAM M'ADAM BRANDS STATEMENTS REGARD-ING HIM AS FALSE-NO DIFFICULTY IN

FINDING HIM AT HIS OFFICE. While the State and county authorities are gathering new evidence daily in the bogus Lloyds fire insurance cases no arrests have been made of the men who are suspected of swindling. The rumors regarding action by the Grand Jury in the case of three men mentioned Graham Mc-Adam, who has issued a public denial, published Adam, who has issued a public denial, published in The Tribune, of allegations against him, and declared that the report of his departure from the city is false. It was said that he could not be found at his office or his home, and that no one seemed to know where he was. A Tribune reporter, however, yesterday saw Mr. McAdam at his office, No.

"I am here," he added; "this is not my ghost. Of course, I could not be in this office twenty-four hours a day, and attend to business which requires my presence in other parts of town. Yes, I heard about the talk of an indictment, and I have waited around here until 6 o'clock in the evening, waiting for whoever might come for me; but no one came Another man in the office nodded assent, and the speaker continued. "I am not in insurance, I do not know all the ins and outs of this bogus Lloyds affair, but it seems to me, from the accounts of fraudulent organization, that swinding is rampant. I do not care to discuss the affair, however, as I have placed it all in the hands of my counsel, Edward M. Shepard."

Mard M. Shepard. Inquiry having been made respecting the Commercial Lloyds, which has just reinsured its busimercial Lloyds, which has just reinsured its business, Mr. Bellows, an attorney of the association, said yesterday: "We have reinsured only temporarily, but the Commercial Lloyds will continue on as firm and substantial a basis as heretofore, maintaining its standing in insurance as an established association, and writing only first-class business."

maintaining its standing in insurance as an experiences."

The Commercial Lloyds was formed long before the appearance in the field of the ninety-five concerns which are charged with sailing falsely under Lloyds colors. The Commercial's books were opened to inspection vesterday, and prominent firms were shown as holding its policies.

The agitation in Pine-st, over bogus Lloyds has inspired a rush to investigate the validity of papers on which various Lloyds are doing business, and several persons who signed their names as sponsors and want to be released from the obligations which they have incurred. This has raised the question whether or not a Lloyds subscriber can release himself. Policies stipulate that they can be cancelled by giving five days' notice. But if twenty or more subscribers vote "No" to one subscribers "Yes," there seems to be no remedy.

In the case of the man who subscribes to the stock of a company, should he want to be released from his liability, all he has to do, according to law, is to sell his stock. And if the stockholder die, his executor may sell and realize for the estate. But in the case of the death of a Lloyds subscriber, Pine-st, is asking the question, How would it be? Could the estate be divided before all the policies had expired, insurance men are asking, or not until all claims or suits under policies were settled?

WORK WITH ROENTGEN RAYS.

EXPERIMENTS OF PROFESSOR KIMBALL

AND MR. EDISON. Dr. Arthur L. Kimball, professor of physics Amherst College, has been at work for some time experimenting with the Röntgen rays. In a private letter just received from him in this city gives some interesting details of his work. He uses the Crookes tubes altogether in his experiments, and has succeeded in getting capital radiographs of the hand in from ten to twelve minutes, showing the bones and the finger-nails distinctly, the centre of the bone appearing less opaque than the edges, and a finger-ring showing clearly into my office, where my stenographer and I were seated. Clifford said: 'Mr. Wattson, I have been with the hand of his little son, eight years old, on a twelve-minute exposure, which showed clearly the incomplete ossification of the banes. The metabones in the palm of the hand showed the the space between them evidently not being fully ossified. Dr. Kimball reports the best results from a straight tube, with the terminals at each end a straight tube, with the terminals at each end and the cathode plate in the centre. Both ends of the tube were connected with the positive pole, and the negative with the cathode plate. The tube brought the best results when pointed endwise at the plate-holder, and at a distance of about one for foot.

Thomas A. Edison made his first attempt on Saturday night at a radiograph of a human head. The exposure was for an hour and twenty minutes. The result was practically nothing. A clear picture or shadowgraph of the head was obtained, but no details were found. The exposure was from front to rear, and the plate was one 14x1. Mr. Edison will try the experiment again with a higher intensity of current. He does not believe, however, that any really practical results can be secured.

DISCUSSING THE SCHOOL BILLS.

AN ADDRESS AT THE MEETING OF GOOD GOVERN-

James B. Reynolds, a school trustee in the Tenth Ward and a member of the University Settlement Society, spoke before Good Government Club P at its monthly meeting in the clubhouse, No. 27 West Onemonthly meeting in the clubhouse, No. 27 West One-hundred-and-twenty-fourth-st., last night. The club has been considering the school bills now before the Legislature. Mr. Reynolds argued against the Strauss bill and in favor of the Pavey bill and the Strauss bill and in favor of the Pavey bill and the compromise bill, which has been introduced lately. The Strauss bill increases the power of the trustees, and the Pavey bill abolishes the trustees altogether. The Compromise bill substitutes boards of inspectors for the trustees.

Mr. Reynolds argued that the present plan of having all school teachers introduced into the system by trustees was bad; that the system should be reformed so as to centralize power, in order to make the school system alike all over the city, and that the present conflict between boards of trustees and the Board of Education was injurious to the system.

A SPLENDID FURNITURE DISPLAY.

The De Graaf & Taylor Furniture Company are their store, Nos. 47 and 49 West Fourteenth-st. The prices in every department have been greatly reduced in order to clear out all furniture before the removal of the business, which will take place before long. A capital opportunity is thus afforded for the purchase of goods marked considerably under the ordinary rates. The ground floor is devoted entirely to dining-room furniture, which has always been one of the specialties of the firm. There are tables, china-closets and sideboards of every description. One of the latter, of antique oak, is of particularly imposing size, with beautiful designs in heavy carving. A complete set of table side-table and sideboard is a fine example of the signs in heavy carving. A complete set of theme, side-table and shieboard is a fine example of the new Flemish finish, now so fashionable. Parlor and library furniture, with many odd pleces difficult to classify, fill the second floor. Chairs and comfortable-looking sofas are upnoistered in rich brocades and delicate silk tapestries of new design. Most of the library chairs are in leather, with a few in the fancy striped corduroy, which wears well and is somewhat of a noveity. It takes every available square foot of space on the third floor to hold the bedroom furniture, which is so varied in style that every one should find something to his or her taste. Mahogany, antique oak, bird's-cye mapie and the satiny curiy birch are the popular woods. There are many reproductions of Empire and Colonial designs. A large line of brass beds, old dressers and white enamel pleces fill the rear of the floor. At the top of the house are desks for the office and library. Those with rolling tops are especially reasonable in price, ranging from $15 up. Hat racks of mahogany and carved oak in Colonial style exhibit many picturesque patterns. Small, decorative tables come in all the woods, and in all shapes, as do parlor and music cabinets. A large assortment of rocking chairs combine comfort with beauty, and will doubtless tempt many a weary shopper.

Mrs. Bertha Spritz, the wife of Simon Spritz, a olgar manufacturer, at No. 426 First-ave., was alone in her husband's store at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when she heard the ringing of the burglar alarm connected with the basement, where much tobacco is stored. She ran out into the hallway adjoining the store just as O'Connell was about to leave the building by the front door. He had come from the basement, frightened, evidently, by the social questions. A curious testimonial to the value of THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC is afforded by the fact that, for several years, a resident of this city, with a mind for figures, a lawyer we believe, made a deliberate study of THB TRIBUNE ALMANAC every year, ferreting out every error and favoring THE TRIBUNE with his friendly but unsparing conclusions. The Almanac now contains so few errors of any sort that the voluntary critic has gone entirely out of the business. He does not find enough to reward his search. THE TRIBUNE challenges Democrats and Populists, Republicans and Free Silver men, Prohibitionists and others, to find any proof of unfairness or misleading information in THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC. Members of Patriotic Societies and those desiring to join them will find in this number the names of the officers of all the leading Societies of every kind in the United States. 25 CENTS A COPY.

A passerby came to her aid, and also seized hold of O'Connell. The burgiar shook his captors off, turned and ran up to the roof, pursued by the stranger. Mrs. Spritz ran to the street and shouted for the police.

Finding himself pursued, O'Connell ran to the next house and down the stairway to the street. Here a crowd had collected. Policeman Michael J. Conroy, of the East Twenty-second-st. station, was on post a block away. Seeing the people assembled in front of No. 42 First-ave. he jumped on a passing Belt Line car and hurried to the scene, arriving just as O'Connell reaches the street. On seeing the officer the fugitive turned and ran to the roof again, closely followed by the policeman. He ran over the roof, jumped to a fre-escape balcony of the adjacent house and began scrambling down the ladder.
